With the Church Women

Central Division of the First Baptist church held its regular monthly meeting Monday afternoon, August 2, at the home of Mrs. A. S. Stephens. Mrs. M. P. Campbell V. leader presiding. After a short business session, Mrs. Lee Sanders gave a most helpful talk on "Trust of children".

The regular meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church was held on the third Monday afternoon in July. Mrs. Minnie Milford the new president presided. After a short business session a good program on the "Home Mission Schools" was given.

MAKING A HOME

SARAH M'CRADY TRESKOT.

Many people imagine that house building and home making is one and the same thing but it is vastly different. Men build the house, but women make the home, and all women are not home makers, some can live in a house for years, surrounded by every beauty, and luxury and yet the atmosphere of home is missing.

First banish every carpet and heavy rug, have bare floors, with matting, or grass rugs, take all long curtains down, they only keep out the air, have short ones, covering only the upper sash, plain crisco white, or a bordered thin fabric, the color in the border to match your rugs.

When it is all done, you will be charmed with the result, and feel more than repaid for your trouble. The cost will be slight matting rugs and curtain material, are very reasonable in price, and when you see your charmingly cool, restful, and refreshingly changed home, (and hear the pleased exclamations of your family, you will feel that you are a genuine home maker in one sense of the word, at least.

Fashions of the Day. One of the great French "fashion artists" on a trip to this country, was asked what he thought of American women, he shrugged expressive shoulders, waved his hands sadly, and said "it made him to weep" when urged to explain, he exclaimed "they were all of a sameness."

There is no prettier sight than a group of fresh, dainty, happy girls, the styles seem particularly suitable for young girls this year, if they are followed correctly, and not in an exaggerated form. Too much face powder too high heels and too low cut necks are not good form, particularly on the street.

meeting that was recently held at Barker's Creek.

The Southern Division of the W. M. S. of the First Baptist church met last Monday afternoon with Mrs. W. G. Watson and Mrs. Minnie Milford at their beautiful suburban home. After a short devotional, the leader being assisted by several of the members, a most delightful social hour was spent.

During these extremely warm months, meetings of this kind not only keep interest alive, but are really inspiring and helpful. In this way we learn to know each other better and it is very informal and such a nice way to exchange "recipes".

Y. W. A. Picnic. The girls of the First Baptist church Y. W. A. had a delightful picnic in the park at North Anderson on last Thursday afternoon. The girls always enjoy getting together in these social gatherings. A bountiful lunch was served.

cut out, are two very different things. There are so many lovely things in dress materials now, and so moderately priced, that if a girl is clever with her fingers, she can have a number of pretty dresses at very little cost. Avoid loud colors, do not over load with cheap lace, and make simply. The one piece house dress for morning wear is comfortable, sensible, and becoming, the up to date girl ought to have several, never wear old finery or out of date wrappers at home. Don't put all your money in one pair of shoes, or slippers, that is poor economy, get Oxfords for morning wear and walking, pumps for afternoon and evening, it will pay you to have three pairs always on hand, it rests your feet and saves shoes to change your foot wear frequently.

All white is charming for the afternoon, but it must be exquisitely fresh and spotless. Tub skirts of corduroy or plume, organdie or lawn waists with a touch of hand work on them, or a delicate edge of lace, white shoes and stockings. What more can a sensible girl want? And if she only know how sweet and attractive she was in her simple and inexpensive white dress, she would be satisfied and not yearn for silks, and the costly summer fabrics, so dear to the feminine heart, and so depleting to her purse.

The Kitchen. The culinary department is one of the most neglected. As a general rule meals are never planned ahead, it is just "ok whatever is in the house," or "run to the store," and what they cook is usually the same thing over and over again.

"Variety is the spice of life" and yet variety is seldom seen in the average kitchen. When vegetables are in, they live on them, boiled or fried, until the garden dries up. When fall comes, pork, sausage and hams are the order of the day, and they stay the order of the day until the last scrap of meat is used.

Yet the same vegetables and meat could be made into dozens of appetizing dishes, with just a little more trouble. Take the Irish potato, you see it boiled or mashed until you weary of the sight of it. Try them this way once, and see if you don't like them. Wash carefully as many as you are to use, leave their jackets on, don't peel, roast them in the oven until quite done, take out, and while still warm, cut a slice from the top of each potato, scoop out the contents with a small spoon, being careful not to break the skin, add to the potato you have taken out of the skins, after you have rubbed it through a sieve, or potato ricer, a spoonful of butter, one well beaten egg, pepper and salt, and a drop or two of milk, or cream. Beat well, it should be as light as a feather, fill each case, slip back in oven and brown.

Another good way to boil them, slice in a pan, with a pinch of pepper and salt, make a cover of butter and a spoonful of flour, put into a pint of hot milk, salted, stir until it thickens, pour over the potatoes, and brown in oven. It is surprising to see how few kitchens have any of the modern conveniences, in the way of cooking utensils, there are so many small articles, of the greatest value to those who do their own work, not only as time savers, but making hard work so much easier. I saw quite a clever device for kitchen in one of the magazines, which I will try and describe next week. It can be easily put up by anyone, and will be a decided help to the busy housewife.

Embroidery. These are the days to turn your attention to Christmas work, you can take advantage of many an otherwise idle hour, and have a box filled with gifts, ready to pack and send when that strenuous time comes. Then you won't have to run to the shops at the last minute, and buy some trash, that is a joke to the one that receives it, and a slur on your own good taste.

A yard of linen, a little good work, and ingenuity, can produce a remarkable number of useful and captivating presents. But if you notice, I say good work, I do not say spoil good linen with bad work. Embroidery is an art, it cannot be carelessly and hastily done, it takes time, care and patience, if you wish to do it well, ad bad embroidery is positively a distress to one who has any taste, better have the plainest of gowns, than one elaborately and badly embroidered. A bit of hand work, exquisitely done, enhances the beauty of any garment, but poor, careless and quickly constructed work detracts. In my next article I will describe some easily made gifts.
